Course Aims

In this course, the aim is to explore the ways in which cities and urbanism have become central to our understandings of modern life.

The course is divided into 3 main parts. The first part introduces main themes in urban studies, such as infrastructure, political-economy of cities, sustainable development, and governance. The second part critically studies these themes in more detail, through the lens of urban design, inequality, urbanization in the Global South, citizenship, urban density and mobility. The third part invites students to explore 2 contemporary questions around urbanism: (1) How do cities learn? (2) What would the future of cities look like?

Intended Learning Outcomes (ILO)

By the end of the course, you should be able to:

1. Describe the urbanization process and identify how cities develop, function and interact with each other and various social systems
2. Identify and discuss key contemporary debates around urbanization and urban development
3. Identify characteristics of urban transformations in different parts of the world
4. Explain how cities have used experimental methods to urbanize and solve specific urban problems
